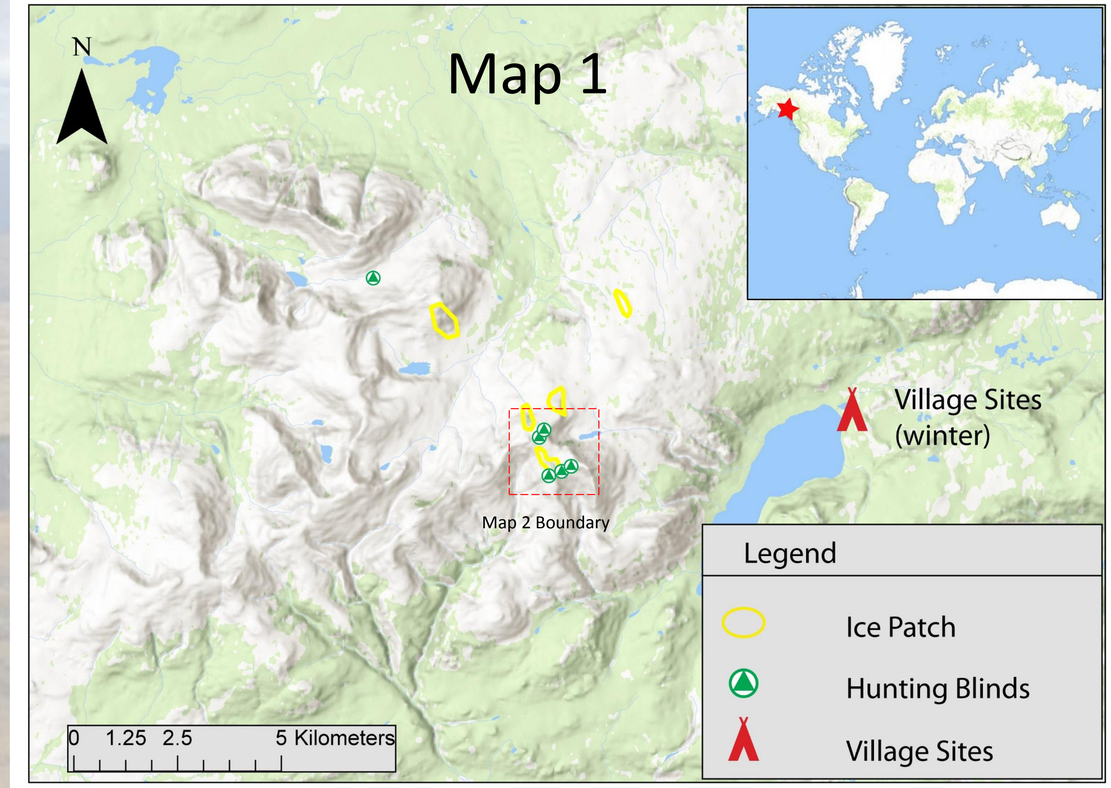
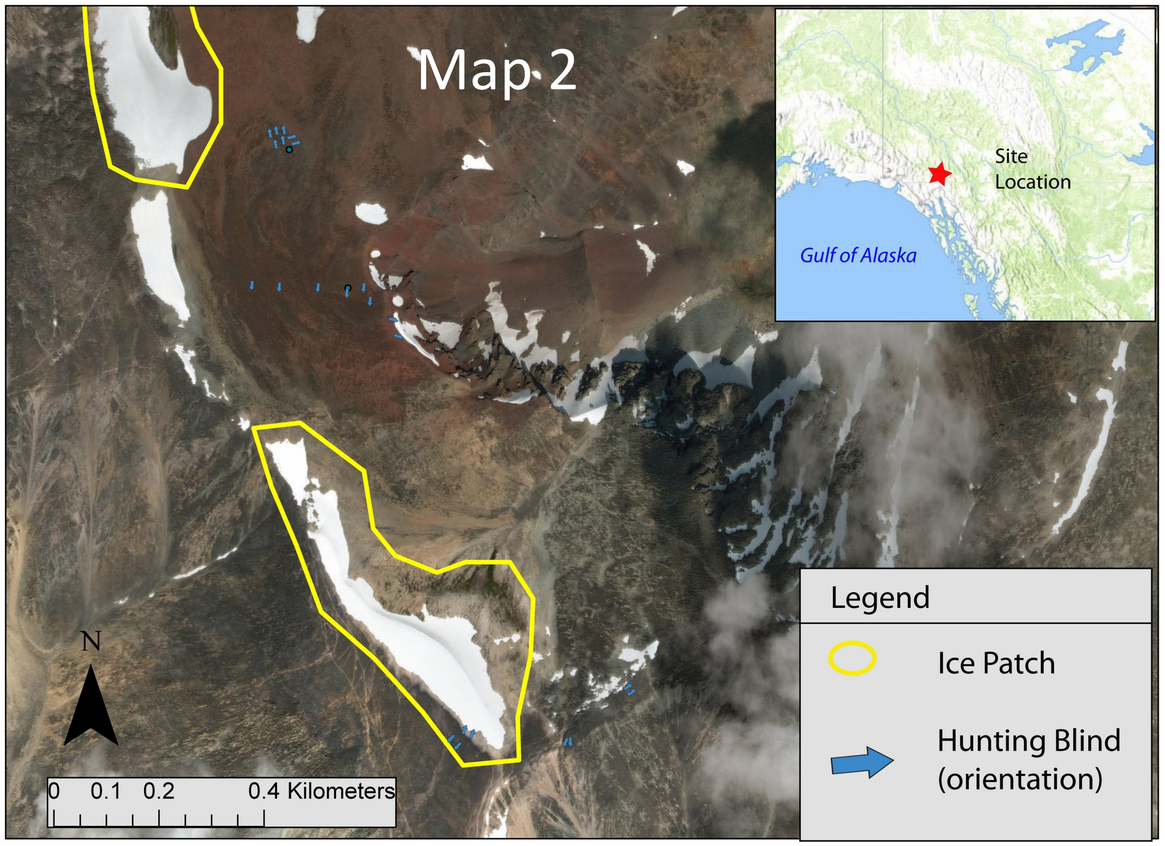
Traditional Mountain Hunting Blind Networks of Southern Yukon, Canada

Christian D. Thomas. Heritage Resources Unit, Department of Tourism and Culture, Yukon Government (Christian.Thomas@gov.yk.ca)

- Permanent hunting infrastructure was maintained in mountain hunting territories that overlapped with summer and fall season caribou and sheep habitat.
- The traditional use of these spaces is aligned with animal abundance and health during these seasons.
- C14 dating of hundreds of artifacts from these sites suggest that this seasonal activity was practiced consistently for 9,000 years. Mountains were seasonal spaces.

CARCROSS/TAGISH FIRST NATION




Yukon