

Gatekeeping in Science

Wednesday, April 24

- 8:30 – 8:45            Welcoming
- 8:45 – 9:55            Claus Beisbart: It's the level, stupid. On the difficulties of terminological gatekeeping
- 10:00 – 11:10        Phil Parker: Can we address prejudice and unscientific thinking in the scientific establishment? - a case study.
- 11:10 – 11:40        Coffee Break
- 11:40 – 12:50        Katherine Dormandy: Bad gatekeeping and science fundamentalism
- 12:50 – 15:00        Lunch Break
- 15:00 – 16:10        Bruce Grimley: Is psychology a science?
- 16:10 – 16:45        Coffee Break
- 16:45 – 18:15        Eric Winsberg: 'So friggin' likely!': gatekeeping as a propaganda tool regarding covid origins
- 18:45                    Dinner at "Die Kunstpause"

Thursday, April 25

- 8:30 – 9:40            Jeroen de Ridder: Are the gates crumbling? A guided tour of evidence on scientific gatekeeping
- 9:45 – 10:55        Gerhard Mayer: A Risky Undertaking – Research in Frontier Areas of Knowledge
- 10:55 – 11:30        Coffee Break
- 11:30 – 12:40        Tanja Rechnitzer: New intermediaries in science communication
- 12:40 – 14:00        Lunch Break
- 14:00 – 15:10        Raimund Pils: Informed Consensus Reporting on Scientific Findings: Insights from the Scientific Realism Debate
- 15:15 – 16:25        Melanie Altanian: Genocide scholarship, survivor testimony and epistemically unjust source criticism
- 16:25 – 16:45        Coffee Break
- 16:45 – 18:15        Graduate students roundtable: Constantine Efaplomata, Johanna Stüger, Jonas Wittwer
- 18:45                    Dinner at "Die Kunstpause"