Associated Partners:

• Istituto Nazionale di Fisica Nucleare – Gran Sasso Science Institute (INFN-GSSI)

• Istituto Nazionale di Astrofisica (INAF)

• Astronomical Observatory of Belgrade (AOB)

• Max Planck Institute for Solar System Research (MPS)

How to apply and deadline:

Applications can be submitted via www.astromundus.eu. Applications for the course starting in September 2017 should be submitted no later than November 30th, 2016. Student housing at the different sites will be organized. As a part of the application process, students can also apply for a scholarship.

Scholarships:

A limited number of scholarships is expected to be funded through the Erasmus+: Erasmus Mundus Joint Master Degree (EMJMD) programme of the European Commission and the AstroMundus Consortium.

Because of the limited number of scholarships, we strongly recommend that prospective students seek and apply for other scholarships that might be funded, e.g., by their own Country and/or Institution of origin or by other organizations.
