Dear all,

At the Fluvial Ecosystem Ecology group (FLEE <https://www.uibk.ac.at/ecology/flee/>), we have started a conversation about gender and diversity in science, and decided it was important to bring the topic to a broader group within our scientific community in Innsbruck.

In that spirit, we would like to invite you to the screening and discussion of the film “Picture a Scientist”, a TRIBECA Film Festival awarded movie from 2020. The film depicts many levels of discriminations towards women in different stages of their careers, from physical harassment to years of subtle mistreatment and disrespect. Biologist Nancy Hopkins, chemist Raychelle Burks, and geologist Jane Willenbring are the main leads of the story, bringing viewers on an eye-opening journey into their own experiences in the sciences. The film also presents an array of scientific experts - including social scientists, neuroscientists, and psychologists – who provide new perspectives on how to make science itself more diverse, equitable, and open to everyone. For more details on the film and on the initiatives behind the production of this film, you can visit: <https://www.pictureascientist.com/>

We hope to see you and your team there!

When? Thursday, October 6th at 14:00

Where? At the Lecture Hall G, ground floor (Hörsaal G, EG), Technikerstrasse 25a.

Let's open the floor about diversity in our everyday science lives.

Best regards,

Diversity and Inclusivity team
