Curriculum for the

Bachelor's Programme French

at the Faculty of Language, Literature and Culture, University of Innsbruck

§ 1 Classification of the Study Programme

The Bachelor's Programme French is grouped among the Humanities and Cultural Sciences.

§ 2 Qualification Profile

(1) Thanks to the contents and the methodological structure of the study programme, the Bachelor's Programme French qualifies for many different fields. Apart from the transfer of profound expert knowledge and active written and oral language skills, the study programme focuses on the development of key qualifications guaranteeing intellectual openness and methodical flexibility for practicing rapidly changing job profiles.

1. Subject-specific skills and preparatory scientific training

a) Language skills: The language training within the curriculum is focused on the guidelines of the Common European Frame of Reference: Learning, Teaching, Assessment (CEFR) (compare: Council of Europe, Council for Cultural Cooperation: Common European Framework for Languages: learning, teaching, assessment. 2001). The target level for graduates of the Bachelor's Programme French is competence level C1 acc. to CEFR. Graduates have university language skills and have a command of the four skills of listening, speaking, reading and writing, which are prerequisites for communicative skills, intercultural action and examination of texts and which they have acquired in an integrated form. Oral and written language competence are developed and extended systematically and progressively in fields such as text reception, text production, special languages and transmission (mediation) in order to correspond to scientific and vocational education.

b) Linguistic skills: These are the competences which students acquire by the synchronic and diachronic study of the structures and functions of the different fields of language, especially the French language. Graduates of the Bachelor's Programme French are able to analyse language on a system-linguistic and cognitive/psycholinguistic basis and to reflect on the language's situation-specific use (pragmatics, sociolinguistics). They have a scientifically sound knowledge of the most important sub-disciplines of general linguistics and French linguistics in particular. They understand the French language as the result of a varied, historical development process. They are able to apply the acquired knowledge and skills to specific tasks.

- c) Literary skills: These are the competences which enable to critically deal with literary texts of the French language and cultural area from a diachronic and synchronic perspective, whereby the term “literary” is broadly defined and thus also includes film, audio drama, comics or text music (e.g. chanson, musical). Graduates have a detailed knowledge of production conditions, historical-social contexts and traditions of literary life. They are able to deal with the theories of literary examination and to use scientific literary methods exemplarily and apply them to the analysis of concrete literary and non-literary texts.
 - d) Cultural-scientific skills: These competences result from the acquisition of knowledge in terms of the cultural, political, social, economic and gender-specific context of the relevant French language area in past and present. Graduates also have the competence to critically deal with the issues concerning these language areas and to elaborate associated subjects according to scientific criteria.
 - e) Culture skills: This includes the competence to identify, define and describe the geographical, economic, historical, ethnic-religious, political, socio-cultural and gender-specific facts of the relevant culture and language area. Graduates are aware of the varied conditions of the respective culture area in comparison to their own culture, which leads to a norm- and convention-appropriate behaviour in the foreign culture area.
 - f) Intercultural skills: Graduates have the competence to analyse and shape cultural interaction processes.
 - g) Basic and orientation knowledge: The study programme conveys basic knowledge of cultural science (methods, subjects and objectives) and familiarity with basic issues (concept of culture, culture-theoretical approaches). It enables to understand the culture-scientific dimension of the special studies in its historical relativity and actuality.
 - h) Media skills: Graduates are familiar with culture-scientific important text sorts and media and know how to deal with media in general and the media of the respective target culture. Media skills also refer to theoretical-methodical competence in the field of inter-media contexts, in particular with regard to the relationships between literature and other art forms as well as in the field of different medial expression forms of discursive phenomena (e.g. text, image, sound).
2. Key qualifications and soft skills: These are qualifications which students acquire in addition to their subject-specific competences and which qualify them to undertake vocational tasks in different occupational fields. Special emphasis is to be given to:
- a) Written and oral expression: Students of the Bachelor’s Programme French have to write numerous works, give presentations in courses and discuss work results. In this context, they also learn to present different contents, to outline complex issues in a comprehensive and convincing manner, to defend their own point of view, to criticise other views, to ask specific questions, and to give precise answers. One of the key qualifications is thus communicative competence in French and in their mother tongue.
 - b) The ability to clear rigid thought patterns by thinking in alternative ways and to be open for unconventional and creative solutions: Intense critically reflected dealing with specialist literature and different doctrines is particularly suitable for developing this ability.
 - c) Thinking in contexts: By linking the Bachelor’s Programme French with other science fields and neighbouring disciplines, students are able to think in contexts and to consider several aspects of the tasks to be accomplished.
 - d) Thanks to the continuous confrontation with the socio-cultural reality of the respective language areas, graduates acquire intercultural competences during the study programme. They are familiar with moving in the context of their own and well as the foreign culture and consider the different views and schools of thought respectively. This also implies open-mindedness and tolerance.
- (2) Occupational profiles and career opportunities: Due to the subject-specific skills and key competences acquired during the Bachelor’s Programme French graduates qualify for jobs in different occupational fields and with different profiles.

- (3) Graduates of the Bachelor's Programme French qualify for registering for an advanced Master's Programme. They are also entitled to add a secondary school teacher training programme to their study programme (general education, subject of French).

§ 3 Scope and Duration

The Bachelor's Programme French covers 180 ECTS-Credits. This corresponds to a duration of the studies of six semesters.

§ 4 Admission

The rectorate decides - based on the regulations of the Universities Act 2002 - on the admission to the Bachelor's programme.

§ 5 Types of courses and maximum number of students per course

- (1) Courses without continuous performance assessment:
1. Lectures (VO) are courses held in lecture format. They introduce the research areas, methods and schools of thought for a given subject.
 2. Studies orientation courses (SL) provide an overview of the study programme and its structure. They give students an objective basis to assess their decision to pursue their chosen subject. Maximum number of participants: 30
 3. Working groups (AG) serve to treat a topic in collective fashion, examining the theories, methods and techniques of an area using group work. Maximum number of participants: 30
- (2) Courses with continuous performance assessment:
1. Introductory seminars (PS) introduce students interactively to scientific literature through the treatment of selected issues. They convey knowledge and methods of academic work. Maximum number of participants: 30
 2. Practical courses (UE) focus on the practical treatment of concrete scientific tasks within an area. Maximum number of participants: 25
 3. Lectures with practical elements (VU) focus on the practical treatment of concrete scientific tasks that are discussed during the lecture parts of the course. Maximum number of participants: 30
 4. Excursions, conducted outside the premises of the university, serve to demonstrate and deepen course contents. Maximum number of participants: 30.

§ 6 Allocation of places in courses with a limited number of participants

In courses with a limited number of participants, course places are allocated as follows:

1. Students for whom the study duration would be extended due to the postponement are to be given priority.
2. If the criterion in Z 1 does not suffice, first, students of the Bachelor's Programme French and of the Secondary School Teacher Accreditation Programme in French, for whom this course is part of a compulsory module are to be given priority, and second, students of for whom this course is part of an elective module.
