§ 1 Allocation of the study programme

According to §54 par. 1 of the Universities' Act 2002, the Master's Programme Slavonic Studies is allocated to the group of language, literature and culture studies.

§ 2 Qualification profile

In the Master's Programme Slavonic Studies the language comprehension skills and the competences for dealing with methods of linguistics, literary and cultural studies as well as media analysis (focus: film) are advanced:

(1) Graduates

- have a highly specialized theoretical and methodical knowledge in the subject of Slavonic studies,
- have comprehensive language skills in the sense of a complex command of the Russian language and another Slavonic language (Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian or Polish). They are proficient in listening, speaking, reading and writing at the level B2/C1 (Russian) and B1 (second Slavonic language) of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages,
- are able to independently analyse and reflect on literary and other linguistic testimonies and cultural artefacts for their aesthetic, rhetoric, narrative, intertextual as well as inter- and trans-medial state on a high level and incorporate the knowledge and information acquired this way for further developing their working field,
- have a comprehensive understanding of concepts, theories and methods of research in literary and cultural studies,
- are trained for critically dealing with literary and cultural artefacts from the Slavonic language and cultural area and have broad, but also highly specialised knowledge of transversal, trans-disciplinary and transmedial aspects, theories and methods,
- know about historic developments and contemporary manifestations of Russian and other Slavic languages and are able to independently comprehend and critically reflect on these phenomena using suitable methods, theories and concepts,
- have a specialized theoretical knowledge of the system and the functions of Russian as well as comprehensive skills for recognizing, analysing and critically evaluation the pragmatic-communicative conditionality of language in social and cultural contexts. Moreover, they develop theoretical and methodological competences for synchronous language comparison (Russian – Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian or Polish – German resp.),
- are familiar with theories of language acquisition and multilingualism and can use this knowledge in a working or learning field as a basis for innovative thinking approaches and/or research,
- have the competence to work on a subject-specific topic independently, data-based, theory-based and methodically reflected and to further develop it and present it in the required form or with regards to their audience,
- are able to control the implementation of strategic decisions and to take responsibility therefor.

(2) Moreover, the graduates of the Master's Programme Slavonic Studies have acquired scientific key competences supported by theories and methods. They have specialist skills in interculturality, cooperation, independence and flexibility. A supported, optional stay abroad during the Master's programme enables the further specialisation of these competences at international level.

(3) Graduates of the Master's Programme Slavonic Studies can use their expertise in their working or learning area as well as their knowledge from other disciplines for the strategic direction and management of complex projects, functional areas or companies.

Depending on their selected individual focus they are qualified for the following professional fields:

- national and international media: print media, radio, TV, new media etc., book trade, librarianship, publishing,

- businesses with working fields and relations in Eastern Europe,
  - public services, cultural administration and education, adult education,
  - tourism management,
  - diplomacy and representation of interests, development aid and cooperation,
  - public relations: in businesses, in public administration, in cultural businesses, in research (national and international): universities, research centres etc.
- (4) The Master's Programme Slavonic Studies is a scientific study programmes and the basis for a doctoral programme.

§ 3 Scope and duration

The Master's Programme Slavonic Studies covers 120 ECTS-Credits. This corresponds to a study duration of four semesters. One ECTS-Credit corresponds to a workload of 25 hours.

§ 4 Admission

- (1) Admission to the Master's Programme Slavonic Studies requires the completion of a subject-specific Bachelor's Programme or a subject-specific Bachelor's Programme at a University of Applied Sciences or another comparable study programme at an approved post-secondary educational institution home or abroad.
- (2) In any case, the Bachelor's Programme Slavonic Studies at the University of Innsbruck is considered a relevant study programme. The rectorate decides, according to the Universities' Act, on study programmes in question or on the equivalence of a study programme passed at a post-secondary educational institution home or abroad for the admission to the Master's programme.
- (3) In the event that equivalence has been established in principle but with certain qualifications missing for full equivalence, supplemental examinations may be required by the rectorate. These examinations must be passed during the respective master's programme.

§ 5 Types of courses and maximum number of participants

Courses without continuous performance assessment: (maximum number of participants: 20):

1. Seminars (SE) provide in-depth treatment of scientific topics through students' presentations and discussion thereof.
2. Lectures with practical elements (VU) focus on the practical treatment of concrete scientific tasks that are discussed during the lecture parts of the course.
3. Practical courses (UE) focus on the practical treatment of concrete scientific tasks within an area.
4. Excursions (EX), conducted outside the premises of the university, serve to demonstrate and deepen course contents.

§ 6 Allocation of places in courses with a limited number of participants

In courses with a limited number of participants, course places are allocated as follows:

1. Students for whom the study duration would be extended due to the postponement are to be given priority.
2. If criterion no. 1 does not suffice for regulating the admission, then first, students for whom the course is part of a compulsory module are to be given priority, and second, students for whom the course is part of an elective module.
3. If the criteria in no. 1 and 2 do not suffice for regulating the admission, then the available places are raffled.
