Innsbruck (A) and Bolzano/Bozen (I)
4 February – 15 February 2019

Under the auspices of the Secretary
General of the Council of Europe,
Mr Thorbjørn Jagland

WHAT IS THE WINTER SCHOOL ABOUT?

The Winter School is a two-week international postgraduate programme on federalism, regionalism and multilevel governance. It explores, from an interdisciplinary and comparative perspective, how federalism can contribute to multilevel, integrated and pluralistic decision-making.

A wide range of lectures provides an opportunity for participants to broaden their knowledge of multilevel governance and government, especially from the perspectives of legal and political sciences. Top-notch scholars coming from different backgrounds and from around the globe lead courses and workshops on federalism and its challenges in the Winter School's international learning environment.

The 2019 edition of the School will focus on federalism and the rule of law. For one week at the University of Innsbruck, which celebrates its 350th anniversary and one week at Eurac Research, Bolzano-Bozen, participants will analyze the requisites, problems and instruments of the rule of law in federal systems. A wide range of case studies and examples of symmetric and asymmetric federations, the European Union, multinational states or current examples in Europe, Africa or Asia will be discussed.

Furthermore, the study of federalism and minority issues, secession referendums as well as different policy fields, such as financial relations and environmental policies, will provide insights into the workings of federal states governed by the rule of law.

Beside numerous opportunities for discussion with leading experts on multilevel governance throughout the lectures, the interactive sessions will also offer participants the chance to share knowledge among themselves. Both lectures and workshops will address the issue of implementing the rule of law in federal systems through case studies and their comparison.

The Winter School will examine a series of issues:

- What particular challenges does the rule of law pose for federal systems?
- How do different concepts of the rule of law affect federal systems?
- What is the role played by courts when it comes to conflicting law at federal and regional level?
- Is federal loyalty essential for all federal systems?
- How can secessionist claims be accommodated in federal systems governed by the rule of law?
- What impact do federalism and the rule of law have on fiscal relations, divided societies and policy fields such as environment?
- What lessons can be learned from comparative practice?

The Winter School 2019 examines these and other questions by combining theoretical expertise and relevant case studies. As such, the programme is a unique opportunity for young academics, postgraduate students and practitioners to receive enhanced training on the theoretical and practical aspects of federalism.

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

The Winter School is designed for those who wish to upgrade their knowledge of federalism through an interdisciplinary and comparative approach, including:

- young researchers and academics
- post-docs, postgraduate and graduate students
- civil servants from local, regional or national government
- employees of international organisations or NGOs

Please note that the programme builds on assumed prior knowledge of federalism.
