The University of Innsbruck has a long tradition of research in the fields of International Law, European Law and Comparative Law. While in the past the resulting studies have been published in different places this series has been created to offer a common heading to these activities.

This initiative goes hand in hand with the foundation of a new publisher, innsbruck university press, which aims at giving more visibility to the many research activities of the University of Innsbruck.

In this endeavour, innsbruck university press cooperates with two leading publishers of the German speaking world, Nomos-Verlag (Baden-Baden) and Schulthess-Verlag (Zürich).

The editors of this series encourage the publication of doctoral theses, presented at the University of Innsbruck, as well as monographs and collective writings by Faculty members. Academics from outside are, however, also invited to submit their studies for publication within this series. Publishing languages are English and German. Manuscripts in other languages may be accepted upon a case-by-case evaluation by the editors.
