

Guidelines for Language Courses

Language courses at the Language Centre aim to develop all key language skills equally. These include listening comprehension, reading comprehension, and the productive skills of writing and speaking. The content and learning objectives of our courses are based on the proficiency levels of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).

Our lessons are designed to be interactive. Using realistic, everyday scenarios, participants practise using the language confidently in practical situations. There is also a particular focus on raising awareness of cultural contexts.

The courses are characterised by a high standard of learning and the active involvement of participants. A teaching approach tailored to the target group and employing a variety of methods enables continuous and efficient learning progress.

Lessons are delivered by dedicated, academically qualified teachers with extensive teaching experience. Up-to-date subject content and modern teaching approaches are continuously integrated into the teaching concept. The positive feedback from our participants confirms the quality of our teaching, which is consistently geared towards individual learning success.

Our language and intercultural courses are aimed at:

- adult learners
- people with prior learning experience who are familiar with structured learning
- participants who
 - know and can apply their own learning strategies
 - are willing to study independently outside of class and thus actively contribute to their learning curve
