AURORA International and Interdisciplinary Community Service Learning

Addressing challenges through transdisciplinary research

Interdisciplinary Community Service Learning (iCSL) is a module that can be followed next to any Master's programme and gives you the opportunity to work on real-life, current challenges.

You will work in an interdisciplinary student team and collaborate with societal partners. Each member tackles a part of the broader challenge using their own expertise. Your team meets regularly to integrate insights and consider the wider implications for the overarching societal issue. At the end, you deliver a joint interdisciplinary report and present your findings to both scientific and societal audiences during a public dialogue event (part of the NWO-funded project Science with Society).

When: Online starting in February, On-site 25-29 May 2026

For whom: Master's students

ECTS: 6
