

User name: j [REDACTED]
E-Mail: j [REDACTED] @gmail.at
Starting time: 11:10
Finishing time: 12:15
Number of words: 178

Posted: March 14, 09:10 PM by j [REDACTED]:

I really understand you, because I am also for equal opportunities, but I also think that this is unfair. It must be hard not to get a job, because you studied a lot. If I were in your situation, I would feel the same. But you must also see the situation of women, because they are often <sup>also</sup> seem to be a disadvantage.

I personally think that women have more often disadvantages on the job market, because the companies prefer men. It is understandable, because women sometimes go on maternity leave, but it is also hard for the women. In my opinion it is important that ~~few~~ women are in senior positions but ~~also~~ men should not be always disadvantaged.

It really should be equal opportunities for men and women, then it would be fair in the job market. Men and women should also earn equal, when they are in the same position. Furthermore the companies should also encourage men to go on parental leave, because then there could not become a lack of females in senior positions.