

WHAT IS THE WINTER SCHOOL ABOUT?

The Winter School is a two-week international postgraduate programme on federalism, regionalism and multilevel governance. A wide range of lectures provides the opportunity for participants to broaden their knowledge of multilevel governance, especially from the perspectives of legal and political sciences. Renowned experts in the field lead courses and workshops on federalism and its challenges in the Winter School's international learning environment that features top-notch scholars coming from different backgrounds and from around the globe.

The Winter School explores, from an interdisciplinary and comparative perspective, how federalism can contribute to multi-level, integrated and pluralistic decision-making. The 2016 edition will cover conflict and cooperation in federal systems. For one week at the University of Innsbruck and one week at the European Academy of Bolzano/Bozen (EURAC), participants will analyze both the effectiveness of federalism as a tool to solve intergovernmental conflicts and discuss the relevant constitutional instruments and institutions in multilevel systems, such as second chambers or constitutional courts. Furthermore, hot topics such as fiscal federalism and the role of political parties in promoting conflict or cooperation will be discussed. Among the practical case studies from different continents (Asia, Africa and Europe), attention will be paid to recent secessionist movements in Europe and possibilities for their solution.

Beside numerous opportunities for discussion with renowned experts on multilevel governance throughout the lectures, interactive sessions will also offer participants the chance to share knowledge among themselves. Interactive workshops will address asymmetries in multilevel systems, financial relations, political parties, as well as the policy field of environmental protection.

The Winter School will examine a series of issues:

- How can federalism be used to mediate conflicts between territories?
- What are the characteristics of successful models of co-operative federalism?
- To what extent are second chambers a tool to integrate subnational entities?
- How can intergovernmental bodies be used to prevent conflicts?
- What can constitutions offer vis-à-vis secessionist movements?

- Is territorial autonomy in divided societies a tool for conflict or cooperation?
- What is the role of political parties in intergovernmental relations?

The Winter School 2016 examines these and other questions by combining theoretical expertise and relevant case studies. As such, the programme is a unique opportunity to receive enhanced training on the theoretical and practical aspects of federalism and multilevel governance.

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

The Winter School is designed for those who wish to upgrade their knowledge of federalism through an interdisciplinary and comparative approach, including:

- post-docs, postgraduate students and young researchers
- civil servants from a local, regional or national government
- employees of international organisations or NGOs

Please note that the programme builds on assumed prior knowledge of federalism.

WHAT TO EXPECT IN INNSBRUCK AND BOLZANO/BOZEN?

The two-week programme is embedded in an exciting international learning environment in Austria (Innsbruck, Tyrol) and in Italy (Bolzano/Bozen, South Tyrol) and includes:

- lectures by distinguished academics
- discussions and case studies with senior experts from international administrations
- study visits to political institutions
- interactive workshops and a public lecture

The Winter School is held entirely in English.

SCIENTIFIC COMMITTEE

- Univ.-Prof. Dr. Anna Gamper
Full Professor at the Department of Public Law, State and Administrative Theory at the Faculty of Law, University of Innsbruck.
- Prof. Dr. Francesco Palermo
Head of the EURAC Institute for Studies on Federalism and Regionalism in Bolzano/Bozen and Professor of Comparative Public Law at the Faculty of Law, University of Verona.
- Univ.-Prof. DDr. Günther Pallaver
