

Raymund Schwager — Innsbrucker Religionspolitologische Vorlesungen

Gastvortrag

Prof. Dr. John Ranieri

Disturbing Revelation: Strauss, Voegelin and the Bible

8. November 2007

Ort: Hörsaal I - Theologische Fakultät, Karl-Rahner-Platz 3

Zeit: 19.30 Uhr

- John Ranieri is professor of philosophy at Seton Hall University in New Jersey (USA).
- He is a graduate of Columbia University and the Seton Hall School of Theology.
- He received his PhD from Boston College.
- John Ranieri is interested in the relationship between biblical faith and political philosophy, as well as the thought of René Girard and Bernard Lonergan.
- He is an expert on Eric Voegelin and Leo Strauss and has published several articles and a monograph on their works.

Selected publications:

- *“Modernity and the Jewish question. What Leo Strauss learned from Nietzsche.” In Politics and the Apocalypse. Edited by Robert Hamerton-Kelly. East Lansing: Michigan State University Press, (forthcoming) 2007.*
- *"The Bible and Modernity. Reflections on Leo Strauss." In Contagion 11 (2004) 55-87.*
- *"Leo Strauss on Jerusalem and Athens. A Girardian Analysis." In Shofar 22/2 (2004) 85-104.*
- *"What Voegelin missed in the gospel." In Contagion 7 (2000) 125-159.*
- Eric Voegelin and the good society. Columbia: University of Missouri Press, 1995.