Supervisions: I have supervised BA, Master and PhD students.

Several of my former BA students have gained accession to prestigious Master programs at internationally leading universities (such as LSE, Oxford, and Sciences Po, Paris); some of my former Master students gained positions at, for example, major newspapers, state parliaments, in the central administration of Innsbruck University or research positions at Innsbruck or other major universities

I have currently two PhD students: Gregor Handrich, Austrian, whose PhD project focuses on structure and agency in the third wave of autocratization, recipient of one the prestigious DOC scholarships of the Austrian Academy of Sciences; Gregorz Makuch, Polish, who looks into the politics of government and opposition in oil-rich regimes.

Recently graduated PhD students supervised (main supervisor):

Trix van Mierlo (2022, now a Policy Researcher at the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
The Netherlands)
Julia Fischer (2022, now at Technical University of Munich, Germany)
Katharina Crepaz (now at Eurac Research, Bolzano, Italy, and Technical University of
