

Guidelines for our Language Courses

The teaching at the Language Centre is designed to promote both listening and reading comprehension as well as the writing and speaking skills of the participants. The learning objectives and content of our courses are based on the level requirements of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).

Our language lessons are designed to be interactive and are supplemented by the means of the latest media. By simulating everyday situations in class, participants are successfully prepared in the use of the relevant language for everyday situations. Also, enhancing awareness in cultural contexts provides participants with an additional core element of our practise-orientated lessons.

Our Intensive German Courses are renowned for their high level of learning standards and continual class participation. A combination of target-group-specific and methodical teaching approaches ensures a steep learning curve.

Our course instructors are highly motivated and academically qualified with many years of teaching experience. Our teaching concept offers the additional benefits of research-oriented foreign language courses: Current topics as well as the latest didactical findings are constantly incorporated into lesson planning. The positive feedback from the participants regarding our courses affirms the teaching concept of the Language Centre and its instructors, which is focused primarily on the learning success of the participants.

The language and intercultural courses of the Language Centre are aimed at...

- ...adult learners
- ...participants, who are experienced learners and
 - are familiar with their own learning strategies and
 - are willing to learn independently in and outside the classroom setting.
