About Adriano Ferraresi:

Adriano Ferraresi graduated in Specialised Translation at the University of Bologna and obtained a PhD in English for Special Purposes from the University of Naples “Federico II” with a work on collocations in university degree descriptions. He is now senior assistant professor at the Department of Translation and Interpreting of the University of Bologna, working on phraseology, especially from a corpus-based perspective, and institutional academic English. He teaches courses on translation technology and on translation from English into Italian.
