In his paper de Keyser will present the various critical editions of writings by Francesco Filelfo that he has been preparing in the last few years:

Filelfo's Xenophon and Plutarch translations, the dialogue Commentationes Florentinae de exilio, the epic poem Sphortias, the Oratio parentalis and the 48 books of Collected Letters. As a whole, they illustrate not only the intellectual journey and literary ambitions of an important Quattrocento humanist, but also the way in which Filelfo himself organized and supervised the production of multiple manuscript copies of his writings — a modus operandi that has in fact major consequences for the modern-day editor of these texts.
